

The Washington Post has created an interactive tool that allows an individual or a married couple to enter their insurance status, household size, and annual income and then learn how the health care reform bill will affect their insurance coverage and taxes. The New York Times published

:

How Different Types of People Will Be Affected by the Health Care Overhaul

.

I cannot vouch for the accuracy of the site, but offer the following links for information purposes.

What does the health care bill mean to me?

Washington Post* March 23, 2010

The health-care overhaul will change the way millions of Americans get health insurance and require nearly everyone to have health insurance or face penalties. A number of factors - including income, age, location and family size - will determine how it specifically impacts your life. This tool looks at what it could mean for your health coverage and taxes based on your income, family size and current insurance status. Click here to go to the interactive tool.

How Different Types of People Will Be Affected by the Health Care Overhaul

New York Times, March 24, 2010

Click here to read the New York Times piece.